BEGAN YOUNG

Had "Coffee Nerves" From Youth.

When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the past months," writes a Texas girl.

I had been exceedingly nervous, and very sallow. I decided to quit coffee and drinking Postum Food Coffee for a while and my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. I am the more remarkable as I am a Primary teacher and have kept at it on with my work.

My complexion now is clear and as my skin soft and smooth. As a result of the conversion was something I had hardly desired, I feel amply repaid that this was the only benefit I have derived from drinking Postum.

Before beginning to use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now known.

Most of all, I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers who were visiting me, to use Postum for a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee.

I also know several to begin the use of Postum and drop it because they did not boil it properly. After explaining how it should be prepared they have tried it again and pronounced it delicious."

PRICES OF MEAT TUMBLE.

Declines Range From 10 To 33 Per Cent.

Chicago (Special).—The drop in the prices of meats in Chicago ranges from 10 to 33 per cent., according to the cattle, the higher grades experiencing the slashes in pork and beef. According to the big packers, further reductions probably will be made in the near future. Representatives of the packers are that the present figures cannot be maintained. Increased supplies, caused by the rushing to market by farmers and stockraisers of their herds in order for the holiday trade and the uncertainty of the situations, are the reasons assigned by the packers for the drop in prices. It is said that 60 days shipments have been unheavy, and this has resulted in a glutted market, and prices maintained for several months have been forced down.

Tragedy During a Thanksgiving Ball At Wheeling.

Wheeling, W. Va. Several women fainted, others became hysterical and were carried from the ball. To add to the excitement, a member of the club, after lighting a cigar, threw a match from the window, igniting an awning below. The entire fire department was called out, but the blaze was extinguished without doing much damage and the ball was discontinued.

NO ALLOTMENTS TO INDIVIDUALS

National Banks to Get All the Certificates.

ONLY $35,000,000 WILL BE ALLOWED.

Secretary Cortelyou Considers the Crisis in the Money Market Over and Believes the Additional Circulation, Based on the Certificates and Panama Canal Bonds, Will Give What Is Needed.

Washington, D. C. (Special).—The announcement by Secretary Cortelyou that further subscriptions to the one-year Treasury certificates would not be received is regarded here as indicating that the Secretary considers the crisis in the money market to be practically over. Official figures have not yet been given out at the Treasury of the amount of the certificates allotted.

The amount of the allotments made, however, is known to be about $35,000,000, and this is probably the limit unless strong reasons are presented from banks which have already made subscriptions why allotments should be made to them. All individual subscriptions having been rejected, it is anticipated that nearly the whole of the $35,000,000 allotted will be used to secure new issues of banknotes.

As these issues will be retired within less than a year, they will not constitute a permanent inflation of the bank-note circulation.

The effect of the new loans upon the future of the Treasury resources and of the money market is already receiving attention at the Treasury and in banking circles. From present sources of information the amount necessary to be added to the cash balance of the Treasury will be about $85,000,000, of which $50,000,000 will represent the 2 per cent. Panama bonds and $35,000,000 will represent the one-year certificates which have been allotted.

This amount would increase the present nominal balance from about $241,392,217, where it stood Thursday, to a little more than $325,000,000. A small additional amount will be derived from the premium on the Panama bonds, but even if this should average as high as five per cent, it would amount to only $2,500,000.

With a nominal balance, however, of more than $325,000 000 the Treasury will not have anything like that amount immediately available. This is because of deposits in national banks and other deposit items. These items amounted to $224,939,559, leaving an actual working balance of $6,462,628. The Secretary has announced that ninety per cent. of the payments for Panama bonds will be left in the custody of the national banks purchasing the bonds, and about 75 per cent. of the payments for the one-year certificates will be left with the banks. The effect of this will be to add to the Treasury balance sheet upon the basis of issues of both classes of securities, to the amount of $35,000,000, will be to increase the amount in banks to about $300,000,000, and the working balance to about $22,000,000.

This condition of the Treasury finances will be changed materially in the spring if Secretary Cortelyou is able to carry out the program of retiring a considerable portion of the one-year certificates before maturity. He will have no difficulty in doing this and saving a considerable amount of the interest to be paid on them if the agreements made with the New York banks can be carried out under the conditions of the money market existing in the spring.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR DEC. 8 BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: Ruth's Wise Choice, Ruth 1:14-22— Golden Text, Ruth 1:16—Memory Verses, 16, 17—Read Ruth 1-4.

Leaving the Book of Judges and opening the story of Ruth we pass from vehement outdoor life, from tempest and trouble into quiet domestic scenes, says the Rev. R. A. Watson, D. D. After an exhibition of the greater movements of a people we are brought, as it were, to a cottage interior in the soft light of an autumn evening, to observe lives passing through the cycles of loss and comfort, affection and sorrow. We have seen the ebb and flow of a nation's fidelity and fortune, a few leaders appearing clearly on the stage and behind them a multitude indefinite, indiscriminate, the thousands who form the ranks of battle and die on the field, who sway together from Jehovah to Baal and back to Jehovah again. What the Hebrews were at home, how they lived in the villages of Judah or on the slopes of Tabor, the narrative has not paused to speak of with detail. Now there is leisure after the strife and the historian can describe old customs and family events, can show us the faithfulness, the humbusy rearers, the women with their cares and unrequited love, the love and labor of simple life. Thunderclouds of sin and judgment have rolled over the scene; but they have cleared away and we see human nature in examples that become familiar to us, no longer in shadow or vivid lightning flash, but as we commonly know it, homely, erring, enduring, imperfect, not unblest.

And Ruth—memorable for ever in her decision, charming for ever the words in which it is expressed—"Entreat me not to leave thee, and to return from following after thee; for whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God; where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me and more also, if aught but death part thee and me." Like David's lament over Jonathan these words have sunk deep into the human heart. As an expression of the tenderest and most faithful friendship they are unrivalled. The simple dignity of the iteration in varying phrase till the climax is reached beyond which no promise could go, the quiet fervor of the feeling, the thought which seems to have almost a Christian depth—all are beautiful, pathetic, noble. From this moment a warm glow lingers about Ruth and she becomes dearer to us than any woman of whom the Hebrew records tell.

Dignified and warm affection is the first characteristic of Ruth, and close beside it we find the strength of a firm conclusion as to duty. It is good to be capable of clear resolve, parting between this and that of opposing considerations and differing claims. Not to rush at decisions and act in mere wilfulness, for wilfulness is the extreme of weakness, but to judge soundly and on this side or that to say: Here I see this duty for me to follow; along this and no other I consider to go. Tarascon decides by taste, by momentary feeling often out of mere spite or antipathy. But the resolve of a wise, thoughtful person, even though it bring temporal disadvantage, is a moral gain, a step towards salvation. It is the growth of individuality of the soul.

Life has many partings, and we have all had our experience of some which without fault on either side separate those well fitted to serve and bless each other. Over matters of faith, questions of political order and even social morality separations will occur. There may be lack of faithfulness on either side when at a certain widely divergent point views of duty are taken by two who have been friends. One abandons only a little apart from the other he sees the same light reflected from a different facet of the crystal, streaming out in the same direction. As it would be altogether a mistake to say that truth took the way of worldly selfishness, Ruth only going in the way of duty as it is entirely in accordance with our condition of faith to recognize and think of them as finally estranged. A little more thought, a little more love with them or they with us. Some day they surely shall reach the truth and agree in our conclusions. Separations there must be for a time, for as the character leans to love or justice, the mind to reasoning or emotion, there is a difference in the vision of the good for which a man should strive.

Yet one difference between men reaches to the roots of life. The company of those who keep the straight way and press on towards the light have the most sorrowful recollection of some partings. They have had to leave comrades and brethren behind who despised the quest of holiness and immortality, and had nothing but mockery for the Friend and Saviour of man. The shadows of estrangement falling between those who are of Christ's company are nothing compared with the dense cloud which divides them from men pledged to the world's service and hostile; and so the reproach of sectarian division coming from irreligious persons needs not trouble those who have as Christians an eternal brotherhood.

Bill Nye's Cow Advertisement.

Bill Nye, the humorist, once had a cow to sell, the story goes, and advertised her as follows: "Owing to my ill health, I will sell at my residence, in township 19, range 18, according to the Government survey, one plush raspberry cow, aged eight years. She is of undoubted courage and gives milk frequently. To a man who does not fear death in any form she would be a great boon. She is very much attached to her present home with a stay chain, and she will be sold to any one who will agree to treat her right. She is one-fourth Shorthorn and three-fourths hyena. I will also throw in a double-barreled shotgun, which goes with her. In May she usually goes away for a week or two and returns with a tall, red calf with wabbly legs. Her name is Rose. I would rather sell her to a non-resident."—Batten's Wedge.

The reservoir formed by it, when full, holds 215,000,000,000 gallons. It has added 1,500,000 acres of tillable land, and has increased the crop value more than $13,000,000, thus paying for itself every year.

The idea of evolution—that is to say, of the origin of existing species from pre-existing ones as against the doctrine of the special creation of each species—is as old as the fourth century B. C., when it was advanced by the Greeks. But it was reserved for Darwin and Wallace to marshal so large an amount of evidence with such irresistible force that the fact of evolution is no longer seriously questioned by competent authorities.

A newspaper states that Prof. Joly has completed a geological examination of specimens of the strata collected from the borings for the Simplon tunnel. He found rich traces of radium, indicating larger deposits than any hitherto discovered in Europe. He believes that the presence of these deposits caused the abnormal heat experienced in building the tunnel. He predicts that continued research will prove the world's supply of radium is greater than was supposed.

One can hardly look out of a window in contemplation of the roofs without seeing a number of metal-bonded ventilators, which have come into general use for the purpose of creating an air current in lofts or air chambers. The only disadvantage connected with their use is that in case of fire they act as a chimney and aid materially in the spread of the flames. In a recent improvement made in these ventilators, the hood is held in an open position by a lever and cord controlled by a fusible link. In case of fire this link is melted, and the hood is allowed to fall of its own weight, and in doing so it closes the air passage and cuts off the draft.

SHORT-NOSED PEOPLE.

Something That May Be Said in Their Favor.

"Physiognomists tell us that the big-nosed people do the world's work," said a short-nosed man the other day, "and they generally add a lot of rubbish about Napoleon's big nose and how he always selected big-nosed men to carry out daring undertakes.

"That Napoleon story was invented by someone with a nose like Cyrano de Bergerac, who wanted an excuse for his proboscis, and therefore, pretended that the nose was but the introduction to a massive, imposing character. It is true that a big nose is sometimes indicative of firmness and determination, but only when it is associated with a strong face and long chin. A big nose with a retiring chin is almost idiotic in the expression it gives to the countenance. Every cartoonist knows this. Whenever you see a cartoon of a society dude it shows a long nose and a small chin.

"But there is something to be said in favor of the short noses. The short nose shows wit, imagination, tact, judgment, discretion. Socrates had a snub nose, and of the lively imaginative writers in almost any language a considerable proportion are short-nosed people. Long-nosed men may do their share of the world's work, but the short noses write the clever books and the entertaining plays. If Shakespeare had had a nose like the Duke of Wellington do you suppose that he would ever have written the 'Merry Wives of Windsor?' He might have been a successful theatre manager, but would never have become a literary artist."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Let me give you a suggestion for exercise.

Rise at 6.30 a. m. Put on cold clothing, easy shoes and a sweater. Time for dressing, five minutes.

Walk one-fourth of a mile; time, five minutes.

Then run a mile at a dog trot in cold weather, arranging your circuit of a mile and a quarter so that you will finish at your door thirteen minutes after starting. At that hour you will meet only the milkman and paper carriers.

That exercise will expand your lungs and stimulate your heart action and land you at your doorstep at 6.45 a. m., panting for breath, thoroughly exhausted and perspiring at every pore. You are then ready for your bath and routine of the day. The man of sedentary habits who patiently pursues this exercise may kiss all drugs good-bye.—New York Times.

Coins Were Hidden For 2,200 Years.

A hundred specimens of the silver tetradrachm of Alexander the Great, part of a find of 500 pieces, made recently in lower Egypt, have been brought to New York. They were found in an earthen jar hidden in the side of an ancient well, where they had laid undisturbed for over 2,200 years. These pieces are very thick, and the silver is of great purity. They correspond in weight to the half dollar.

The obverse bears the head of Hercules in a lion's skin. The reverse shows Zeus, seated in a chair, and all bear the name of Alexander in Greek. Many interesting monograms and mint marks were found in this lot, and some of the pieces bore the Greek word, for the mint, marks, designating the towns or cities where they were struck, were the forepart of a ram, a bow, a warrior, a plow, a helmet, and so on.

The coins are all struck in very high relief, so high that the modern bank teller would have trouble in stacking more than three of four pieces without their tumbling over. They were found at Luxor.—New York Times.

SORES AS BIG AS PENNIES.

Whole Head and Neck Covered—Hair All Came Out—Suffered a Year—Cured in 3 Weeks by Cuticura.

"After having the measles my whole head and neck were covered with sores about as large as a penny. They were just as thick as they could be. My hair all came out. I let the trouble run along, taking the doctor's blood remedies and rubbing on salve, but it did not seem to get any better. It kept on that way for about six months; then I got a set of the Cuticura Remedies, and in about a week I noticed a big difference, and in three weeks it was entirely well. I have not had the trouble cry more, and as this was seven years ago, I consider myself cured. Mrs. Henry Porter, Albion, Nebr., Aug. 25, '06."
